

Mitochondria and Cellular Respiration

The mitochondrion is the powerhouse of the cell.

Cellular respiration converts glucose and oxygen into ATP.

The electron transport chain is located in the inner membrane.

Krebs cycle intermediates are produced in the mitochondrial matrix.